TALENT

In today's world, the pressures that surround the public sector's leadership and results are increasing exponentially. The competition for talent, resources and the public trust is present and growing. To become a truly great organization, public sector leaders must recognize the pressure that surrounds them and proactively rise to the challenge. Join FranklinCovey thought leader and published author, Dr. Patrick Leddin, as he discusses how to put a system in place now, to ensure success today and in the future.

Creating a Winning Culture

FranklinCovey | Government Services

FranklinCovey Government Services works with Federal, State, Local and Public Safety agencies to help them achieve success by developing great leaders and effective people who execute the organizations mission with excellence.
